

Guidelines for Writing an Opening Scene for a Play

- Decide what your scene is about.
- Create the main characters, setting, and a problem or conflict.
- Write the title, the cast of characters, and the setting at the beginning.
- Start the first scene just as the action is taking off. Introduce your characters and their goals.
- Use dialogue to reveal events and the personality of each character.
- Describe the actions and gestures in brief, clear stage directions.

Guidelines for Writing an Opening Scene for a Play

- Decide what your scene is about.
- Create the main characters, setting, and a problem or conflict.
- Write the title, the cast of characters, and the setting at the beginning.
- Start the first scene just as the action is taking off. Introduce your characters and their goals.
- Use dialogue to reveal events and the personality of each character.
- Describe the actions and gestures in brief, clear stage directions.