

Key Vocabulary

attentively	misunderstanding	troublesome
disappointed	nervously

Having waited in line all day for tickets to the big show, Jamal was very _____ when the salesperson told him the show was sold out. Jamal begged the person in the window for tickets. "You've got to have seats left! I have to go to this show!"

"There seems to be a _____," the salesperson replied. "You don't seem to realize that we have ZERO tickets remaining."

Jamal was now faced with a _____ task. How could he explain to Teresa, the girl he liked, that they wouldn't be going to the show? He called her up, and with great concern in his voice, _____ explained the situation to Teresa.

Jamal listened _____ to Teresa's response, unable to believe his ears. "'That's okay, Jamal,'" she said. "Anthony Freeman got tickets yesterday. I'm going with him."

Key Vocabulary

attentively	misunderstanding	troublesome
disappointed	nervously

Having waited in line all day for tickets to the big show, Jamal was very disappointed when the salesperson told him the show was sold out. Jamal begged the person in the window for tickets. "You've got to have seats left! I have to go to this show!"

"There seems to be a misunderstanding," the salesperson replied. "You don't seem to realize that we have ZERO tickets remaining."

Jamal was now faced with a troublesome task. How could he explain to Teresa, the girl he liked, that they wouldn't be going to the show? He called her up, and with great concern in his voice, nervously explained the situation to Teresa.

Jamal listened attentively to Teresa's response, unable to believe his ears. "'That's okay, Jamal," she said. "Anthony Freeman got tickets yesterday. I'm going with him."