

Music Words

orchestra	jazz	melodies	ragtime
improvise	blues	heritage

Until this year, there were only two bands at my school. The marching band played music at sporting events. The members of the _____ played classical music at concerts and recitals. Then a group of students decided that they wanted to start a band that would reflect the diverse _____ of the people that live in our city, New Orleans. Since our town is known for being the birthplace of _____, this complex style of music was perfect for our new band.

The students got permission and started practicing different tunes. Some of them were _____ by famous jazz composers like Duke Ellington, but the band also wrote some of their own music. They also tried out different styles of jazz, like _____.

When the band finally gave their first concert, the whole school was there to listen. They started out with a lively tune by the composer Miles Davis. Then the group decided to _____, making a song up as they went along. They were fantastic! Even if you had the worst case of the _____, those sweet tunes could cheer you right up. Now our school has three great bands to be proud of!

Music Words

orchestra	jazz	melodies	ragtime
improvise	blues	heritage

Until this year, there were only two bands at my school. The marching band played music at sporting events. The members of the orchestra played classical music at concerts and recitals. Then a group of students decided that they wanted to start a band that would reflect the diverse heritage of the people that live in our city, New Orleans. Since our town is known for being the birthplace of jazz, this complex style of music was perfect for our new band.

The students got permission and started practicing different tunes. Some of them were melodies by famous jazz composers like Duke Ellington, but the band also wrote some of their own music. They also tried out different styles of jazz, like ragtime.

When the band finally gave their first concert, the whole school was there to listen. They started out with a lively tune by the composer Miles Davis. Then the group decided to improvise, making a song up as they went along. They were fantastic! Even if you had the worst case of the blues, those sweet tunes could cheer you right up. Now our school has three great bands to be proud of!