

Homophones

Doug's fear grew during the course of the hike.
He watched Charlie lick her fur with her coarse tongue.

The sun shone down hotter and hotter as he climbed.
To think that a cougar had shown him how to get around the ledge!

He pried apart the branches to get back on the trail.
He would feel great pride if he could make it past the ledge.

He wanted to hear a human voice, even his own.
Too bad he wasn't working on a merit badge in Bird
Study while he was here.

He gave a groan when he looked down into the canyon.
After he got past the ledge, Doug felt as if he had grown a foot taller.

Doug could tell he was on the right path.
Would he write about what happened during the climb?

Homophones

Doug's fear grew during the course of the hike.
He watched Charlie lick her fur with her coarse
tongue.

The sun shone down hotter and hotter as he climbed.
To think that a cougar had shown him how to get around the ledge!

He pried apart the branches to get back on the trail.
He would feel great pride if he could make it past the ledge.

He wanted to hear a human voice, even his own.
Too bad he wasn't working on a merit badge in Bird
Study while he was here.

He gave a groan when he looked down into the
canyon.
After he got past the ledge, Doug felt as if he had grown a foot taller.

Doug could tell he was on the right path.
Would he write about what happened during the climb?