Last month, the new supermarket opened. Now we go there to buy food and other things we need at home. Ever since the grand opening of the huge store, it has been a busy place day and night.

Our neighborhood grocery store is much smaller. It sells food, too, but it does not have as many choices as the supermarket. I like this store because I know everyone who works there.

Our neighborhood grocery store is going to start making deliveries. They will bring the groceries we buy right to our house! I saw this advertised on a flyer that was on a pole. That will be a big success. People will like having their food brought to them!
