

School

Ann asked her grandmother, "What did you do in school?"

Grandmother said, "That was long ago! My friends and I worked hard. We would read and do math."

Ann asked, "Did you do fun things?"

Grandmother said, "Yes, we sang songs, and we ran in the school yard."

Then Grandmother said, "What do you do in school?"

Ann said, "We do fun things too. We sing songs. We read and do math. We run in the school yard."

Grandmother nodded. Then Grandmother said, "I should rest."

Grandmother would soon be one hundred. Grandmother couldn't remember things. She asked, "What is the matter with me? Why can't I remember?"

Ann said, "But Grandmother, you can remember long ago."

Grandmother said, "Yes, I can."

Then Ann said, "Tell me about your grandfather."

Grandmother said, "I remember going to the sea with my grandfather."

Ann asked, "What would you do at the sea, Grandmother?"

Grandmother Moko said, "We would eat. Then we would sit on the rocks and listen to the sea."
